Part A — The basics card

What Claude is (3 sentences, include verify), the three surfaces, one usage-limit rule.

Claude is an AI assistant that can understand instructions and generate, summarize, analyze, and transform information. Think of it as a very capable assistant that predicts useful responses from patterns it has learned, not as a human expert who automatically knows what is true. Always verify important facts, calculations, and decisions before relying on them.

Choose the right Claude surface:

- Browser — Quick writing, rewriting, brainstorming, questions, and everyday tasks.
- Desktop — Work directly with files and documents on your computer.
- Cowork — Handle larger, multi-step workflows involving multiple files and deliverables.

Usage-limit rule:

Use the simplest Claude surface and prompt that can complete the job—don't repeatedly regenerate answers when a small edit or follow-up will do.

Part B — Prompting in practice

A strong worked prompt, a 'challenge it' prompt, and a voice tip.

Worked prompt

Task: Prepare a client meeting brief for Brightline Partners.

Inputs: Use the meeting notes I provide below.

Output, in this exact order:

1. Executive Summary — 100 words maximum.
2. Client Priorities — 5 bullet points maximum.
3. Key Risks — 3 bullet points maximum.
4. Recommended Next Steps — 5 numbered actions, each with an owner and deadline if available.

Tone: Professional, concise, confident, and suitable for a consulting team.

Important: Do not invent information. Clearly label anything that is uncertain or missing.

Challenge-it prompt

Challenge your previous answer. Identify the three assumptions most likely to be wrong, argue the strongest case against your recommendation, and explain what additional evidence would change your conclusion. Do not agree with me simply because I suggested the original approach.

Voice tip

Use this sample as a style reference. Match my tone, sentence length, level of formality, and vocabulary, but do not copy phrases unnecessarily.

Part C — First Cowork task

First Cowork task brief

Task: Work through the folder “Brightline – New Client Materials.” Review the documents and create these deliverables:

1. Client Summary.docx — a one-page summary of the client's situation, priorities, and key issues.
2. Action Items.xlsx — a table of action items, owners, deadlines, and status.
3. Follow-up Email.docx — a concise, professional email summarizing agreed next steps.
Do not invent missing information. Flag anything that needs my review before completing the deliverables.

Two verification / safety habits

Verify before sending or changing anything: Review emails, documents, formulas, numbers, and external actions yourself before they are finalized or sent.

Protect sensitive information: Never allow Cowork to share, delete, send, or modify sensitive material without confirming exactly what action will happen first.
